Department of Land Management extends 30 day trial of GuamLandWeb an online land and title search platform

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
April 21, 2014

(Tamuning) The Department of Land Management (DLM) extended the BETA test period for GuamLandWeb, an online portal into the government's digitized land records at DLM, for another 30 days.

DLM acting Director David Camacho states "we are still gathering feedback from users. It's important that we have great product before we launch the final version for public use." Presently, the public may register for use of GuamLandWeb by going to <https://egis.guam.gov> and have limited access to the system's features.

GuamLandWeb is part of the Calvo-Tenorio administration's efforts to improve customer service.

DLM is offering free training in the use of GuamLandWeb at no cost to members of the public. For additional information about GuamLandWeb contact:
